Chief Testifies the Accused Told Him That She Wrote Threat Against Miss Emily Burger

O'Neil Grilled on the Circumstances of Confessions Alleged to Have Been Made by Negroes

Providence, Jan. 13.—The dramatic story of how Cecil Victor Brown, the colored hooligan, confronted Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr in the police station shortly after the killing of her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, and accused her of having offered to pay $50,000 for the doctor's murder, was told on the witness stand today by Chief Inspector William F. O'Neil.

A short time previously Chief O'Neil caused Mrs. Mohr to weep by testifying in regard to a letter which it was found she had written, threatening the life of Miss Emily G. Burger, who was known as her successful rival for Dr. Mohr's affections.

There were two of the many accusations which testified to the fact that the death of Dr. Mohr was the result of a plot, causing them to sit solemnly in their chairs, straining their ears to catch every word of the testimony.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr, Sketched in Court

Striking Points of Evidence in Mohr Murder Trial Today

- 1—Mrs. Mohr wrote a letter threatening death to Miss Emily Burger.
- 2—Prosecution's testimony regarding Brown's alleged confession is admitted.
- 3—Chief O'Neil testifies Brown told Mrs. Mohr at police station she had offered $50,000 to kill her husband.
- 4—Defense contends that Brown was hammered with fists by police to obtain confession.
- 5—Alleged admissions of Henry Spellman detailed by Chief O'Neil.
- 6—Discussion of "third degree" prohibited by Judge Stearns.
- 7—Defense secures admission from Chief O'Neil that he testified to things Brown said which were not in his original notes.
- 8—Chief O'Neil admits statement he gave to press on September 9 regarding Brown and Spellman was not correct.

EXPLOSION IN POWDER PLANT

Press House of Du Pont Co. Near Portland, Me., Is Blown Up; Mystery Surrounds Blast Cause

Portland, Me., Jan. 12.—An explosion, the cause of which is a mystery, occurred early today in the press house of the du Pont Powder Company's plant at New-Blast, twelve miles from here.

No one was injured, for by a strange chance the explosion occurred at a moment when the night shift had left the building and the day shift had not arrived.

The explosion occurred at 6 a. m. Half an hour later there would have been six men in the building. There were no explosives in the building, which was a structure like a gas tank, filled with wood pulp used in the manufacture of dynamite. Superintendent R. N. Tonn said:

"Spontaneous combustion may have caused this explosion. I am making a thorough investigation. The plant will be closed for a day or two."

"We have many guards here, of course, and no one is allowed about the place without a pass."

"The roof was blown off this press house, with a damage of perhaps $200."

The du Ponts have supplied millions of dollars worth of powder and explosives to the allies and fought some of the largest battles of the Anglo-French battlefront since the war.

Many explosions have recently occurred in the plants of this company throughout the country. There was one in the Wilmington, Delaware, plant yesterday morning. One man was injured. Last November an explosion at the company's "moon city" of the company, a town of over two million, with a population of 10,000, was killed in an explosion at the company's plant at Campy's Point, N. J. At some of these plants workers had been killed, advising workers to leave.

BOWLER SAYS HE GAVE $5,000 TO WIDOW

John W. Bowler, the rich Worcester brewer, sixty-four years old, with white hair and mustache, swore in the Suffolk Superior Court today that Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pinkham, a comely Brookline widow, demanded $2,500 of him in his Worcester office in 1909 under threat of telling his wife, his relatives and the newspapers and of making him "swear for it."

He swore that he first met her when she spoke to him as he was standing at Elliot and Tremont streets in the Spring of 1909, that they had friendship up to 1902, that trouble arose then, that he paid her $5,000.

2 WOMEN AMONG NEW VICTIMS OF VILLA'S BANDITS

Washington, Jan. 13.—A resolution authorizing President Wilson to use the military and naval forces of the United States in Mexico was presented in the Senate today by Senator Lewis, Democrat, of Illinois. Senator Lewis' resolution would give the President the same power to use the army and navy that "is now being exercised in Nicaragua and Haiti" for the protection of American citizens.

El Paso, Jan. 13.—Following closely upon Monday's massacre of seventeen Americans and one Canadian in Mexico, word was received here today from Chihuahua City that nine more Americans, including a woman, and one English woman have been killed by followers of Francisco Villa at Madria.

The latest massacre was reported to be the work of former Villa soldiers acting under orders of General Jose Rodriguez, who recently issued a proclamation saying he would kill every American who fell into his hands.

The death train bearing the bullet-riddled corpses of the Americans slain on Monday at Santa Ysabel arrived in Juarez at 1:55 o'clock this morning and after a short delay crossed the Rio Grande to the Santa Fe freight yards.

BILL TO LICENSE CATS PROPOSED

The bill to license cats made its appearance in the House today. The bill provides for the licensing of every cat over six months old "if the owner desires to have it live."

The fee would be 50 cents for male and 10 for female tabbies.

Any number of cats could be kept for breeding purposes upon the payment of one fee of $2.

Licensed cats would wear a collar with a metal plate with the number of the license.

ribbly mutilated, showing that the victims had not only been shot, but had been cut and stabbed. The body of C. R. Watson had been decapitated with a bayonet and a long search was necessary before the head was found.

Military guards on the bridge across which the bodies were borne were doubled upon orders from General John Pershing, U. S. A., and extra squads of policemen were on duty throughout the city all night to put down any outbreaks of anti-Mexican demonstrations.

No confirmation has been received of the report that another American, named Thomas Johnson, had been killed by Villaistas near Santa Ysabel. The news was received by the American consul at Chihuahua City, who is now in El Paso.

Carranza Envoy Promises Justice

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 13.—(Herald Tribune.)—Ambassador to the United States, General Carranza, has assured Secretary of State Lansing that the head of the de facto government in Mexico will make every possible effort to bring the murderers of the seventeen Americans near Chihuahua to justice.

The Mexican situation was taken up almost as soon as the House and Senate convened today. In the House Representative Clayton of Texas was the first to discuss it.

"The rising anger of Americans at the Mexican border is dangerous, and cannot be trifled with," Clayton said. He demanded instant action by the Pan-American union to end the outrages in the southern republic.

He said he did not criticize the administration for recognizing Carranza when the choice was between the first chief and Villa, "the unapproachable." After recalling some of the outrages perpetrated on Americans in Mexico, he said:

"The people of the border have been patient under an unparalleled series of outrages. They do not want war with Mexico, but they do want security for their lives and property. Their patience is nearly exhausted. Their anger is great and growing. It depends upon the action on their part, but not be blind who cannot see the danger."

"SCANDAL AND VIOLENCE"
"When the internal affairs of any republic in either of the Americas become a scandal, and a nuisance, when offensive odors of their cross international lines and cries of the victims fall on the ears of neighbors, threatening the peace of other countries, a pan-American union could and should act."

"Horror piled on horror, crime trailing on the heels of crime, have exhausted the patience of the people of the border States and they will be satisfied with nothing short of the capture and execution of the murderers of the sixteen who were the latest victims of anarchy which has been going on in the past year."

"There is an ugly story in connection with the crime that these Americans who relied on the de facto government for protection asked for protection and were refused a military escort. I hope it is not true. If it is it will show that the government of Mexico is indifferent to its obligations, unfaithful to the trust we have placed in them with recognition."

President Wilson said it perfectly clear today that his position regarding Mexico had not changed. His opposition to armed intervention is as strong as ever.

Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas said today that his position regarding the President's telegram he had before the Senate is unchanged. He said that this government intervention in Mexico as the result of the massacre of seventeen Americans near Chihuahua.

"MEXICAN POLICY OF THE U. S. IS INFAMOUS," ROOSEVELT REITERATES

"EVERYBODY knows what I think about the Mexican situation," replied former President Theodore Roosevelt. He had been asked to express his views on the latest atrocities there.

"My views on this subject haven't changed a bit since my last published statement—not a bit. No, I think there isn't anything new for me to say about these latest developments."

He turned to leave the room. In a minute he was back, adding:

"Say for me that I still think the same thing about our national policy in Mexico—about hypocrisies, and about AMERICANISM!" The last word was almost hissed, as he started for the door. Again he turned.

"About AMERICANISM," he hissed a second time, accompanying the exclamation with a slap from his riding whip on his leather puttees.

He had just returned to his Oyster Bay home from a gallop over the hills. He was damp and muddy and his hair was tousled.

In the published article to which he referred, Colonel Roosevelt forcibly condemned the administration's policy in Mexico. He declared:

"Professional pacifists, through President Wilson, have forced the country into a path of shame and dishonor."

Colonel Roosevelt characterized the policy of the United States as "infamous" and concluded:

"Infamy is the only word that can describe with scientific accuracy the policy of poltroonery that the representatives of this government have now for five years put into effect as regards Mexico."

General Obregon, Carranza commander, had authorized his officials to guarantee the American protection.

It is understood that President Wilson told Senator Sheppard that, despite these assurances from Carranza officials, the Americans who were killed had been warned by representatives of this government to stay out of that nation of Mexico.

After his conference with the President, Senator Sheppard stated that he believed the administration would rely upon Carranza to capture and punish those guilty of murdering the Americans. He said there was no indication that this government would take any other steps at this time.

Several dispatches were received at the State Department today from the Collector of Customs Cobb at El Paso.

"About Enough of Mexico," Says McCall

Governor McCall today declared he was greatly shocked by the news of the Mexican massacres.

Asked if he had in mind what course should be pursued by the Wilson administration in the latest massacre of American citizens, Governor McCall, who was for twenty years a Congressman at Washington, replied in a tone that suggested earnestness.

"I wouldn't want to embarrass the administration," Governor McCall said. "I am not a pacifist if they had accurate details of the massacre and he was told that the earlier reports had it that Villa was in command of the attacks on Mexicans."

"That was a fine set for a man who intends to make this country a harbor of refuge," he exclaimed.

Governor McCall added: "I am greatly shocked. We have had altogether too much of this in Mexico. I would make no further comment."

Former President Taft said today: "I was sorry to hear that more Americans had been killed in Mexico. The murders were horrible. They seem to be a repetition of those that have gone before."

My opinion on our policy with Mexico is well known. I have criticized it and the administration a good many times over the Mexican situation. I do not feel that I should say anything now that will stir up the passions and make the situation still worse.

I understand that Congress is about to take a hand, and that the administration policy was criticized by some of the members.

I am not now the President of the United States, but only a citizen. It is up to Congress and the administration to straighten out the troubles in Mexico.

Let the people and the newspapers judge my present opinion from the statements on Mexico that I have given out before this and repeat occurrences.

K. H. MOORE, manager of the Blake & Knott Co., manufacturers of pumps and mining machinery, which in normal times has a large export trade with Mexico.

I do not see their export in killing innocent Americans. It is nothing but murder. Mexico will never get rid of the bandit element until the country has been cleaned from north to south and the bandits exterminated. The situation there is beyond description.

In the war of extermination, which the United States ought to undertake, it should have the help of South and central American nations. It would make for a better feeling. The country should be cleaned up. It should have a thorough housecleaning. The bandits down there now think we are a pack of rascals. They should be taught to show proper respect to American citizens.

Full Details of Massacre Show Fiendish Cruelty of the Mexican Bandits

One American's Head Severed; Others Jabbed in the Face and Body with Bayonets.

By International News Service.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 13.—Fresh details of the massacre of Americans in Chihuahua were received here today with the arrival of the train bearing the bodies of the victims. These showed that the Mexican bandits had executed the most heinous brutality in putting their helpless victims to death.

About 1:55 Monday afternoon the "massacre train" stopped at El Paso, a short distance from Santa Fe. The trainmen explained that a supply train had been derailed some distance ahead.

ARMED MEN APPROACH.
Some of the passengers began leaving the coaches to walk up and down beside the tracks. As they did so between thirty and forty armed Mexicans were seen, many of them wearing the uniforms of the army. The trainmen and along the crest of a range of low hills in the distance several hundred mounted men and many more on foot.

The Mexicans upon reaching the train climbed up the steps and entered the coaches. In the meantime ordered all who had left the cars to return to their seats. They were armed with army rifles and regular service pistols, which they used in the most threatening manner.

"Stand up, all you Americans," shouted a Mexican who seemed to be the leader of the band. He was dressed in a uniform and wore a heavy sombrero covered with silver ornaments.

The passengers thinking that they had been held up and that the Mexicans would be satisfied with taking their money and jewelry, were not very much alarmed.

However, this feeling of complacency was soon given over to intense anxiety when the leader began walking down the side of the car, pulling various passengers to the side of the tracks and the muzzle of his pistol and demanding, "You Americans?"

At the end of each car stood several of the bandits, their rifles carried at arm's length.

SHOOT AS HE SPEAKS.
Most of the Mexicans had risen to their feet, holding their hands above their heads. One of them called out: "We have no arms."

No answer had the words left his mouth than a shot rang out and he fell. Another fell back in a pool of blood. The real nature of the force now became apparent. But most of the Americans remained cool hoping to escape by some means.

After the shooting of Pearce, several of the Americans began to rise and toward the doors of the cars. However no resistance was made.

"Come on you gentlemen get up," was the command of the leader. The Americans left the train and they were taken to the cars. Apparently the Americans did not make any effort to escape, for there was a number of shots in the car and the order of pull which followed showed that some had been hit.

W. J. Wallace was just descending the steps of the car when he was struck in the back of his head and he fell sprawling in a pool of blood. A Mexican dropped his rifle and the body of the victim was taken out of the car and started to rummage in the pockets of the clothing.

TEAR OFF CLOTHING.
Mexicans fell upon the other bodies like wild animals, clawing at the faces with their hands and tearing off the clothing.

Some of the Americans were killed in the coach or as they were taken out of the train. The Americans died bravely. Not one begged for mercy. Those who had left the coach were killed as they were taken to the cars. It had been seen that the escape was impossible as C. H. Watson, leader of the party, had been killed while trying to make his way to safety in a small ravine.

Watson, a stout man with the Mexican hatred of the Mexicans was directed, was among the first to leave the car. He was dropped to the ground on the east side of the train he started to rise. The Mexicans raised their rifles and fired a volley, but Watson did not fall. Another volley of shots rang out and Watson fell to his face, his body stilling about the ground for ten or twelve feet. He had been wounded in a small ravine.

Several Mexicans ran up to the body of the victim and they began to tear off his shirt. One of them, who had been shot in the neck, was still alive, although all his arms and legs were severed.

Some of the Mexicans tried to take advantage of the opportunity while the Mexicans were firing. Watson and his party had started to rise. He had come out of the car and he had been shot in the back of his head. He had been shot in the back of his head. He had been shot in the back of his head.

in Chihuahua City the corpses had been marked and stored, although no time was given for embalming.

Eight members of the squad which had secured the remains accompanied them to El Paso. The trainmen were too exhausted and overworked to make the trip. All the way to Juarez the door of the Pullman car containing the bodies was guarded by a man with an automatic pistol in his hand.

The train from Chihuahua City to El Paso was made without incident. When the train arrived at Juarez a host of troops from the Carranzista garrison stood at attention in the railway station and dipped the Mexican flag as the train rolled by.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
The bodies arrived in Chihuahua City on Wednesday morning, and at 10 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon the bodies were taken to the Carranzista garrison and placed in the railway station and dipped the Mexican flag as the train rolled by.

THIRD ANNUAL SALE OF DRUGS AND TOILET ET CETERA

—The Annual January Sale means more to you this year than ever before—Because much of the raw material entering in the manufacture of drugs and toilet articles comes from abroad, and European conditions have put prices of this raw material "a sky-rocketing"—in some instances 200 to 300 per cent.

—Notwithstanding these conditions, the Annual January Sale goes on as planned, with every item up to its regular high standard of perfection, and with prices far below their actual present worth.

—NOTE: Some items are at our regular selling prices, quoted merely to keep the money-saving advantage of always trading at the Shepard Drug Store before the public.

TAFT SAYS SOUTH IS BEST FOR NEGRO

"The negro is gradually learning that there is for him a greater industrial freedom in the South than he enjoys in the North, and the great schools which are making it possible for him to take his place there as a valuable element in the community are proving to be great national centers of progress in the solution of the race question in this country," said former President William Howard Taft in the opening in aid of Hampton Institute in Symphony Hall.

FEAR FOR LIFE OF TAUNTON MAN IN MEXICO

Yamilton, Jan. 13.—Fear is felt by relatives and friends here for James C. Waterfield, gold refiner, who left last month to return to mines of the American Smelting and Refining Company in the Mexican district, where several Americans have been massacred by Villa's outlaws.

Mr. Waterfield had been back to his old home in this city three or four times in the last three years on account of the danger to foreigners in Mexico. He returned last Summer, bringing his wife, whose health had been wrecked by the dangers to which she and her husband had been exposed. The continual terror preyed upon her nerves so that she was in a decline when they arrived here. Mrs. Waterfield died a few weeks afterward.

Widow's Counsel Open Fight Against Confessions of Accused Negroes.

At the trial of the accused, the defense attorneys, Messrs. Fitzgerald and Phillips, opened a fight against the confessions of the accused, which were made in the presence of the police and the district attorney's office. The defense attorneys claimed that the confessions were made under duress and were therefore inadmissible. The district attorney, Mr. O'Neil, claimed that the confessions were made voluntarily and were therefore admissible. The trial was held in the Superior Court of the City of Boston, and was presided over by Judge Stearns.

"OTHER WOMAN" TELLS OF TRAGEDY

George W. Heals, the chauffeur, jumped out, turned off the head lights, turned on the side lights, threw up the hood and began tinkering with the engine. Suddenly there was an explosion. I thought it was the car back-firing. I heard the doctor say, "Oh, my God!"

Then I thought the car was afire. I grabbed the doctor by the sleeve to pull him out of danger. He fell forward. Then I tried to get out of the car. Then I remember the chauffeur grabbing me by the left arm, and dragging me across the road. I lay there four or five minutes. Suddenly I was conscious of the chauffeur calling for help. I sat up and called for help too.

TOP OF HEAD A MASS OF SCALES

Look Form of Blisters. Hair Lifeless and Dry. Came out in Handfuls, in a Few Weeks

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I was bothered with a troublesome itching on the back of my head for the top of my head, and it was soon followed by a general breaking out. The breaking out took the form of blisters, and the scales began to come out in handfuls, and made a mass of scales on top of my head, and I was constantly scratching. My hair became lifeless and dry, and came out in large handfuls until I was bald on the top of my head."

"I tried many remedies but with no success, until I was told to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The scales began to come out in handfuls, and made a mass of scales on top of my head, and I was constantly scratching. My hair became lifeless and dry, and came out in large handfuls until I was bald on the top of my head."

Tex Rickard Back of Willard-Moran Fight for Gotham

NEW YORK Jan. 12.—Tex Rickard, who managed the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Flushing Meadows, is backing the fight between Jess Willard and Frank Moran for a Gotham purse.

The fight, he said, has been decided upon.

Willard stated that Willard will get $10,000 for his end and Moran will get the other $10,000.

"Sam McRae, the referee, is promoting the bout," said Rickard, "and I am associated with him."

WISDOM O' BLINKEY BEN

BY H. M. WALKER

"S"ir, I looked up at old Perry Haughton, noted Blinkey Ben, the old man who could drag the old man in a professional game with anything short of one of them twenty-man teams that I see in the box ad.

He quoted me as saying that the National League was a lucky in stealing the brand's name.

"In laughing, a fib. A rich strike for the league, a rich strike.

It sure will look natural to see Haughton in a paid show, blunder pants on his shirt and—

"And he may do more than you say and it would surprise me to see Haughton shouldering a bat and going up to nose one out in a game occasionally. A good draw it card."

He said, "I'm taking part of it. I sold a field in a town to a woman with a good eye on me."

He said, "I'm taking part of it. I sold a field in a town to a woman with a good eye on me."

At least it is so when I see it in the face of a girl. And the American girl knows all this as well as you and I. We are not different, we are the same. We are the same in our feelings, our hopes, or not, our training, our ideals, which have said and say a woman must be fragrant, may sew, cook, smile, flirt and baby the world, but she must smoke like a man and still be all woman. I do not know—but there is no look of unease about the girl in our country who smokes, and she is not a different person. She has her queer little crawling feeling, but she doesn't let herself entirely.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be easily made by trifling experiment. A can of hair oil, a cup of water, pour slowly together and massage briskly. It creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dirt. Rinse off, massage and repeat. It is soft on the scalp, especially effective on the scalp, while the hair has a glossy richness of texture and, also, a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo,--the hair is a pleasure.---Advertising

Let Us Begin NOW to Build for the Future of Boston

A Great Opportunity Is Before the City, if Its People Have the Vision and Intelligence and Courage to Take Advantage of It

THE congestion in the Port of New York, which requires the railroads to refuse freight destined to New York, is significant of the opportunity which the future has in store for the Port of Boston, if the people of Boston have the vision and intelligence and courage to take advantage of it.

Nowhere in the world is there located a spot more favorable for commerce than New York city, but it has its limitations to the extent of the business which it can do. Strange as it may seem, the city of New York, under Tammany, has had vision and courage. They not only have recognized the geographical advantage of their city, but they have assisted nature by courageous, optimistic and far-sighted improvements which have precipitated the wonderful development of that greatest metropolis of the western world and now the money center of the whole world. They have recognized the importance of a METROPOLITAN city.

They have recognized the importance of wide and clean streets, of attractive buildings, of splendid parks and fine terminals. They have had the courage to widen the streets, as they did Fifth avenue, at the expense of millions and millions of dollars, and lay out their city with a view to the remote future, which is apparently unknown in Boston.

But the capacity of New York for growth is not limitless, and it is now fast approaching its permanent limit. It has, in fact, already reached its temporary limit, and traffic is backing up into the Port of Boston. This is what far-sighted men anticipated a number of years ago when the Board of Port Directors was established and nine millions were given to them to expend on the development of Boston. But incapacity and the typical Bostonian hand-to-mouth methods were stronger than the momentum given to the idea of port development by the fathers of the idea.

Not only is it necessary for Boston to develop her water terminals, but she should do everything to make herself a great, complete metropolis. She should correct the intolerable congestion in her shopping district, not by taking the tracks off of Washington street, which may be proper enough as part of a comprehensive and complete plan of relief, but is wholly inadequate as an attempt by itself to give any substantial relief. How long would such a condition be permitted in New York, even under Tammany? How long does any intelligent citizen of Boston, who understands New York methods, believe it would take New Yorkers to decide that the proper way to relieve congestion on Washington street is to arcade the street, taking some ten or more feet from the ground floor on the less important buildings on the right-hand side of the street as you go from Adams square to Eliot street, letting that portion of the buildings above the first floor remain intact.

We need clean streets and good streets and wide streets. We need better street car service. We need to have our railroads electrified, and if the business men of this community had been awake ten years ago and had heeded the warning which the AMERICAN then gave them against the New Haven Railroad monopoly we should now have electrification on the New Haven and the Boston & Maine and the Boston & Albany to the New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut boundaries, and wonderful would be the growth of this Metropolitan District which would follow that improvement.

Let us begin NOW to look into the future of Boston with courage, under the new city government with Messrs. Kenny and Storow and their colleagues co-operating with the Mayor and the Mayor co-operating with them for something big and courageous for Boston. Let us have better streets, more efficiency in our city government, a comprehensive planning of the city's future development, and all those far-sighted things that show we appreciate our obligation to the future.

Once-Overs

The other day a man who makes his living by fighting was struck by an undertaker man, and instead of returning the blow he walked away from his diminutive assailant.

This man exhibited much more self-control than the majority of people.

Men who class themselves as being on a higher plane than this fighting man would have mistimed immediately with the hot-blooded individual.

What would you have done?

The chances are that you would have rushed at the fellow with all your might; you would have permitted your savage instincts to rule you.

This proves that you have not as much power as you should have over your impulses.

You may boss other people, but you are not boss of yourself.

Maybe you wonder why others are forcing ahead of you as leaders of men.

It is because they have a check rein on themselves. They have subdued themselves that they may be able to guide others. Self-control is the attribute of a leader.

LOOKING AHEAD

Why Winter Causes Skin Troubles

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

PART ONE.

WE should always treat our skin with the profoundest respect and politeness, and failure to do this is the cause of some of its most frequent and annoying disturbances, though they fortunately are comparatively trivial as far as serious injury to health is concerned.

These are the apparently causeless and unobedient attacks of itching, tickling, and even burning, which come on our considerable areas of the body, particularly about this time of year, when the weather is changing from warmer to colder. They may also occur before a storm or change in the weather, and very frequently after a bath or just after undressing and retiring at night.

These itching and prickling spells are comparatively unimportant so far as ill health or even serious discomfort is concerned, but they are often extremely annoying, and those that come on at bedtime may sometimes very unpleasantly interfere with sleep, while those that occur in the daytime after a bath or a change in the weather produce such a sense of restlessness and discomfort as so considerably interferes with concentration upon whatever work may be in hand.

Furthermore, no one who has ever experienced it needs to be told how intensely exasperating, even maddening, is such a trifling and almost ludicrous discomfort as vigorous and incessant tickling and itching, if it only just keeps up long enough.

The severest form, such as are associated with severe chronic disease of the skin or of the nervous system, have actually been known to drive their victims insane by robbing them of sleep, rest, appetite, so that they have scarcely a moment's pleasure in life. So that there is a certain slight and remote basis for the vernacular expression, "Tickled to death."

Even tickling, however, does not come without some physical provoking cause, though it is but the proverbial "straw."

These annoying and unobedient pranks on the part of our skin have each of them a more or less definite basis, although they often seem as if they were the result of pure caprice.

But this is accounted for by the fact that it is the skin's business to be sensitive, and that the same touchiness which gives rise to these "brain storms" is the delicate and vitally important sense which keeps us so promptly and unerringly informed of changes of temperature, moisture, pressure and electric tension in our surroundings.

Take one of the simpler cases first.—The itching which follows a bath. It is chiefly due to a comparatively simple physical change, and that is the washing or soaking or soaping, as the case may be, of a little too much of the natural lubricating oil or home-made cold cream out of the skin.

The skin, like a piece of kid or wash-leather, is ordinarily kept supple and smooth, by being both coated and saturated with this oil, deposited there by the sweat glands.

Cold water has comparatively little effect upon it except by prolonged soaking; but both hot water and soap dissolve it out quite quickly, and as soon as we are dry after a bath the surface layer of our skin, robbed of its coating of oil, breaks at the very first movements of the body into a network of fine microscopic cracks.

These expose the delicate end-organs of the skin to the air, and they respond by itching. In fact, the physical basis of itching is precisely this irritation of the sensitive nerves of the skin through tiny cracks in the outer layer of the cuticle, or, less commonly, sudden stretching of these nerves by rapid swelling, as in urticaria, or hives.

Diseases of the skin which produce these physical changes of either minute cracking or quick stretching of the skin are attended by itching; those diseases which do not, no matter how severe they may be, are not itchy.

Then comes the case of the "In-Shoots," as it is called.

It is pleasant to hear some big fellow say that the country is on a wave of prosperity, even if it does not pay our rent.

The amateur singer always bumps against reticulation first.

It may be pneumonia, it may be a disease to ever become popular.

There is no fool like the old chap who becomes a victim of the efficacy-holding mania.

Where there's a will there's a way—to change it in time to banish joy from the heart of the distant relative.

Prick the skin of the pleasant-looking man and you will often find him steeped in pessimism.

Because a woman appears indifferent to flattery it is no sign that she does not enjoy the flattery.

Women and War

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

WE women teach our little sons how wrong And how ignoble blows are; school and church Support our precepts, and inoculate The growing minds with thoughts of love and peace. "Let dogs doat to bark and bite," we say; But human beings with immortal souls Must rise above the methods of the brute, And walk with reason and with self-control.

AND then—dear God! you men, you wise, strong men, Our self-announced superiors in brain, Your peers in judgment, you go forth to war! You leap at one another, mutilate And starve and kill your fellow-men, and ask The world's applause for such heroic deeds. You boast and strut; and if no song is sung, No laudatory epic writ in blood, Telling how many widows you have made, Why, then, perchance, you say our hearts are dead And inspiration sleeps to wake no more.

AND we, the women, we whose lives you are— What can we do but sit in silent homes, And wait and suffer? Not for us the blare Of trumpets and the bugles' call to arms— For us no waving banners, no supreme Triumphant hour of conquest. Ours the slow Dread torture of uncertainty, each day The bootless battle with the same despair; And when at best your victories reach our ears, There reaches with them your pitying hearts, The thought of countless homes made desolate, And other women weeping for their dead.

O MEN, wise men, superior beings, say, Is there no substitute for war in this Great age and craft? If you answer "No," Then let us rear our children to be wolves, And teach them from the cradle how to kill, Why should we women waste our time and words?

The Matter of Heredity

By Dorothy Dix.

PROBABLY there is no excuse as that of heredity. We are all prone to lay our shortcomings on our blood instead of on our own laziness, and selfishness. It is so much more soothing to our vanity to blame poor old grandma, or grandfather than it is to admit our weakness.

Did you ever know anybody who had a bad temper who hadn't "inherited it"? Did you ever see a shrewish ne'er-do-well who didn't tell you that the money making instinct didn't run in his family? Did you ever meet a drunkard who didn't sob into his beer glass that he couldn't help it because he took after his great great uncle who drank himself to death at the age of ninety-seven?

Did you ever know a senseless girl who made herself ill by violating every rule of hygiene and rational living, that somebody didn't delve back into her pedigree and fetch out a consumptive relative? Did you ever know a shrew of a woman who didn't justify herself for making life a torment for everybody about her by the fact that her great grandmother also had a good sized yard long with a razor edge to it?

In Charity's Mantle

Oh, as an excuse for the things we do, and the things we don't do, heredity has gotten the mantle of charity, which is said to cover a multitude of sins, beaten to a frazzle.

Of course, it is folly to deny that there is a great deal of inheritance, although just how much science itself has been unable to determine. It is notable, however, that the wise men, who make a study of this subject, seem to believe less and less in the force of heredity and more in the power of environment, the more they investigate the subject.

Undoubtedly we get certain tendencies, certain impulses toward particular directions from our forebears, but the power to control and direct these lies in our own hands, and in those of our parents. It doesn't follow that every drunkard's son is preordained to be a drunkard, nor every tenniser's daughter shall be a virgin.

As a matter of fact, it doesn't happen. Some of the soberest men on earth are those who have had a horror of drink bred in them by having been witnesses to the degradation of fathers who were so, and it is a proverb among women that a trifling mother makes a smart daughter. Also many of the healthiest children of the poor are those whose mothers have taken extra care of their rearing because they knew they had to guard against certain physical weaknesses that the children had a right to inherit.

Should Be a Warning

Instead of being a justification for our faults, heredity should be a warning.

Those who were born of intemperate parents should never touch liquor; those who come of slothful families should redouble their energy; those who have inherited fiery tempers and red heads should put the lightest curb upon their temperaments. There is no need that they should fall into the pit because their ancestors wallowed in it.

Probably, in its last analysis, the power of heredity is chiefly the power of suggestion.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague.

The Cloud
The cat is hiding on the roof.
No books can reach him there—
The dog is barking at the mistletoe—
Beneath the easy chair.
The children do not dare to joke
Or run or romp or play.
For father hasn't had a smoke
Since New Year's Day.

Mother wears a worried look
And hasn't spoken to him there—
The furnace man has gut—the cook
Is going to leave today.
But soon our troubles will be past.
For well we youngsters know
These spells of fathers only last
A week or so.

Too Bad
Alas! our glad midwinter joys
Are badly ruined by the edge.
Broken are the Christmas toys
And smashed the New Year's pledges.

The Real Need of the Hour
Before any Congressman is willing to vote for preparedness he wants to be sure that his party is going to nominate a man who will appoint all his influential constituents to postmasterable.

What More Does He Want?
The Texas educator who asks the country ought to be run by college professors must think the millennium has arrived.

Thwarted Ambition
If they had only let Dr. Cook pass he might have gone to Warsaw where he was almost certain to discover a Poole.

Good Judgment
"New Men Men Best Refuge Behind William H. Taft—M. Y. World. Well, there's room behind him for all of 'em."
